

Academic Research Fellowship

This fellowship is a 1-2 year advanced academic research training program for Emergency Medicine graduates who wish to pursue specialized clinical research training in order to prepare for a career in academic research. The fellowship provides individualized mentoring as well as a comprehensive curriculum on the preparation and conduct of academic research including research design, methodology, medical statistics and grant writing. Fellows will be introduced to the grant application process and will be encouraged to submit a grant application as part of their training. The department has a track record of academic excellence and a commitment to support research and research training. The department also has the infrastructure, including facilities and interdepartmental affiliations, in place to provide an effective training environment.
